

Student favourites

First- and second-year photojournalism students were asked to pick some of their favourite photos. Here are a cross-section of the ones they chose. On pages 15 and 16, take a look at the graduating class of 2014, both as children and as they leave Loyalist College today to go on to their chosen careers.

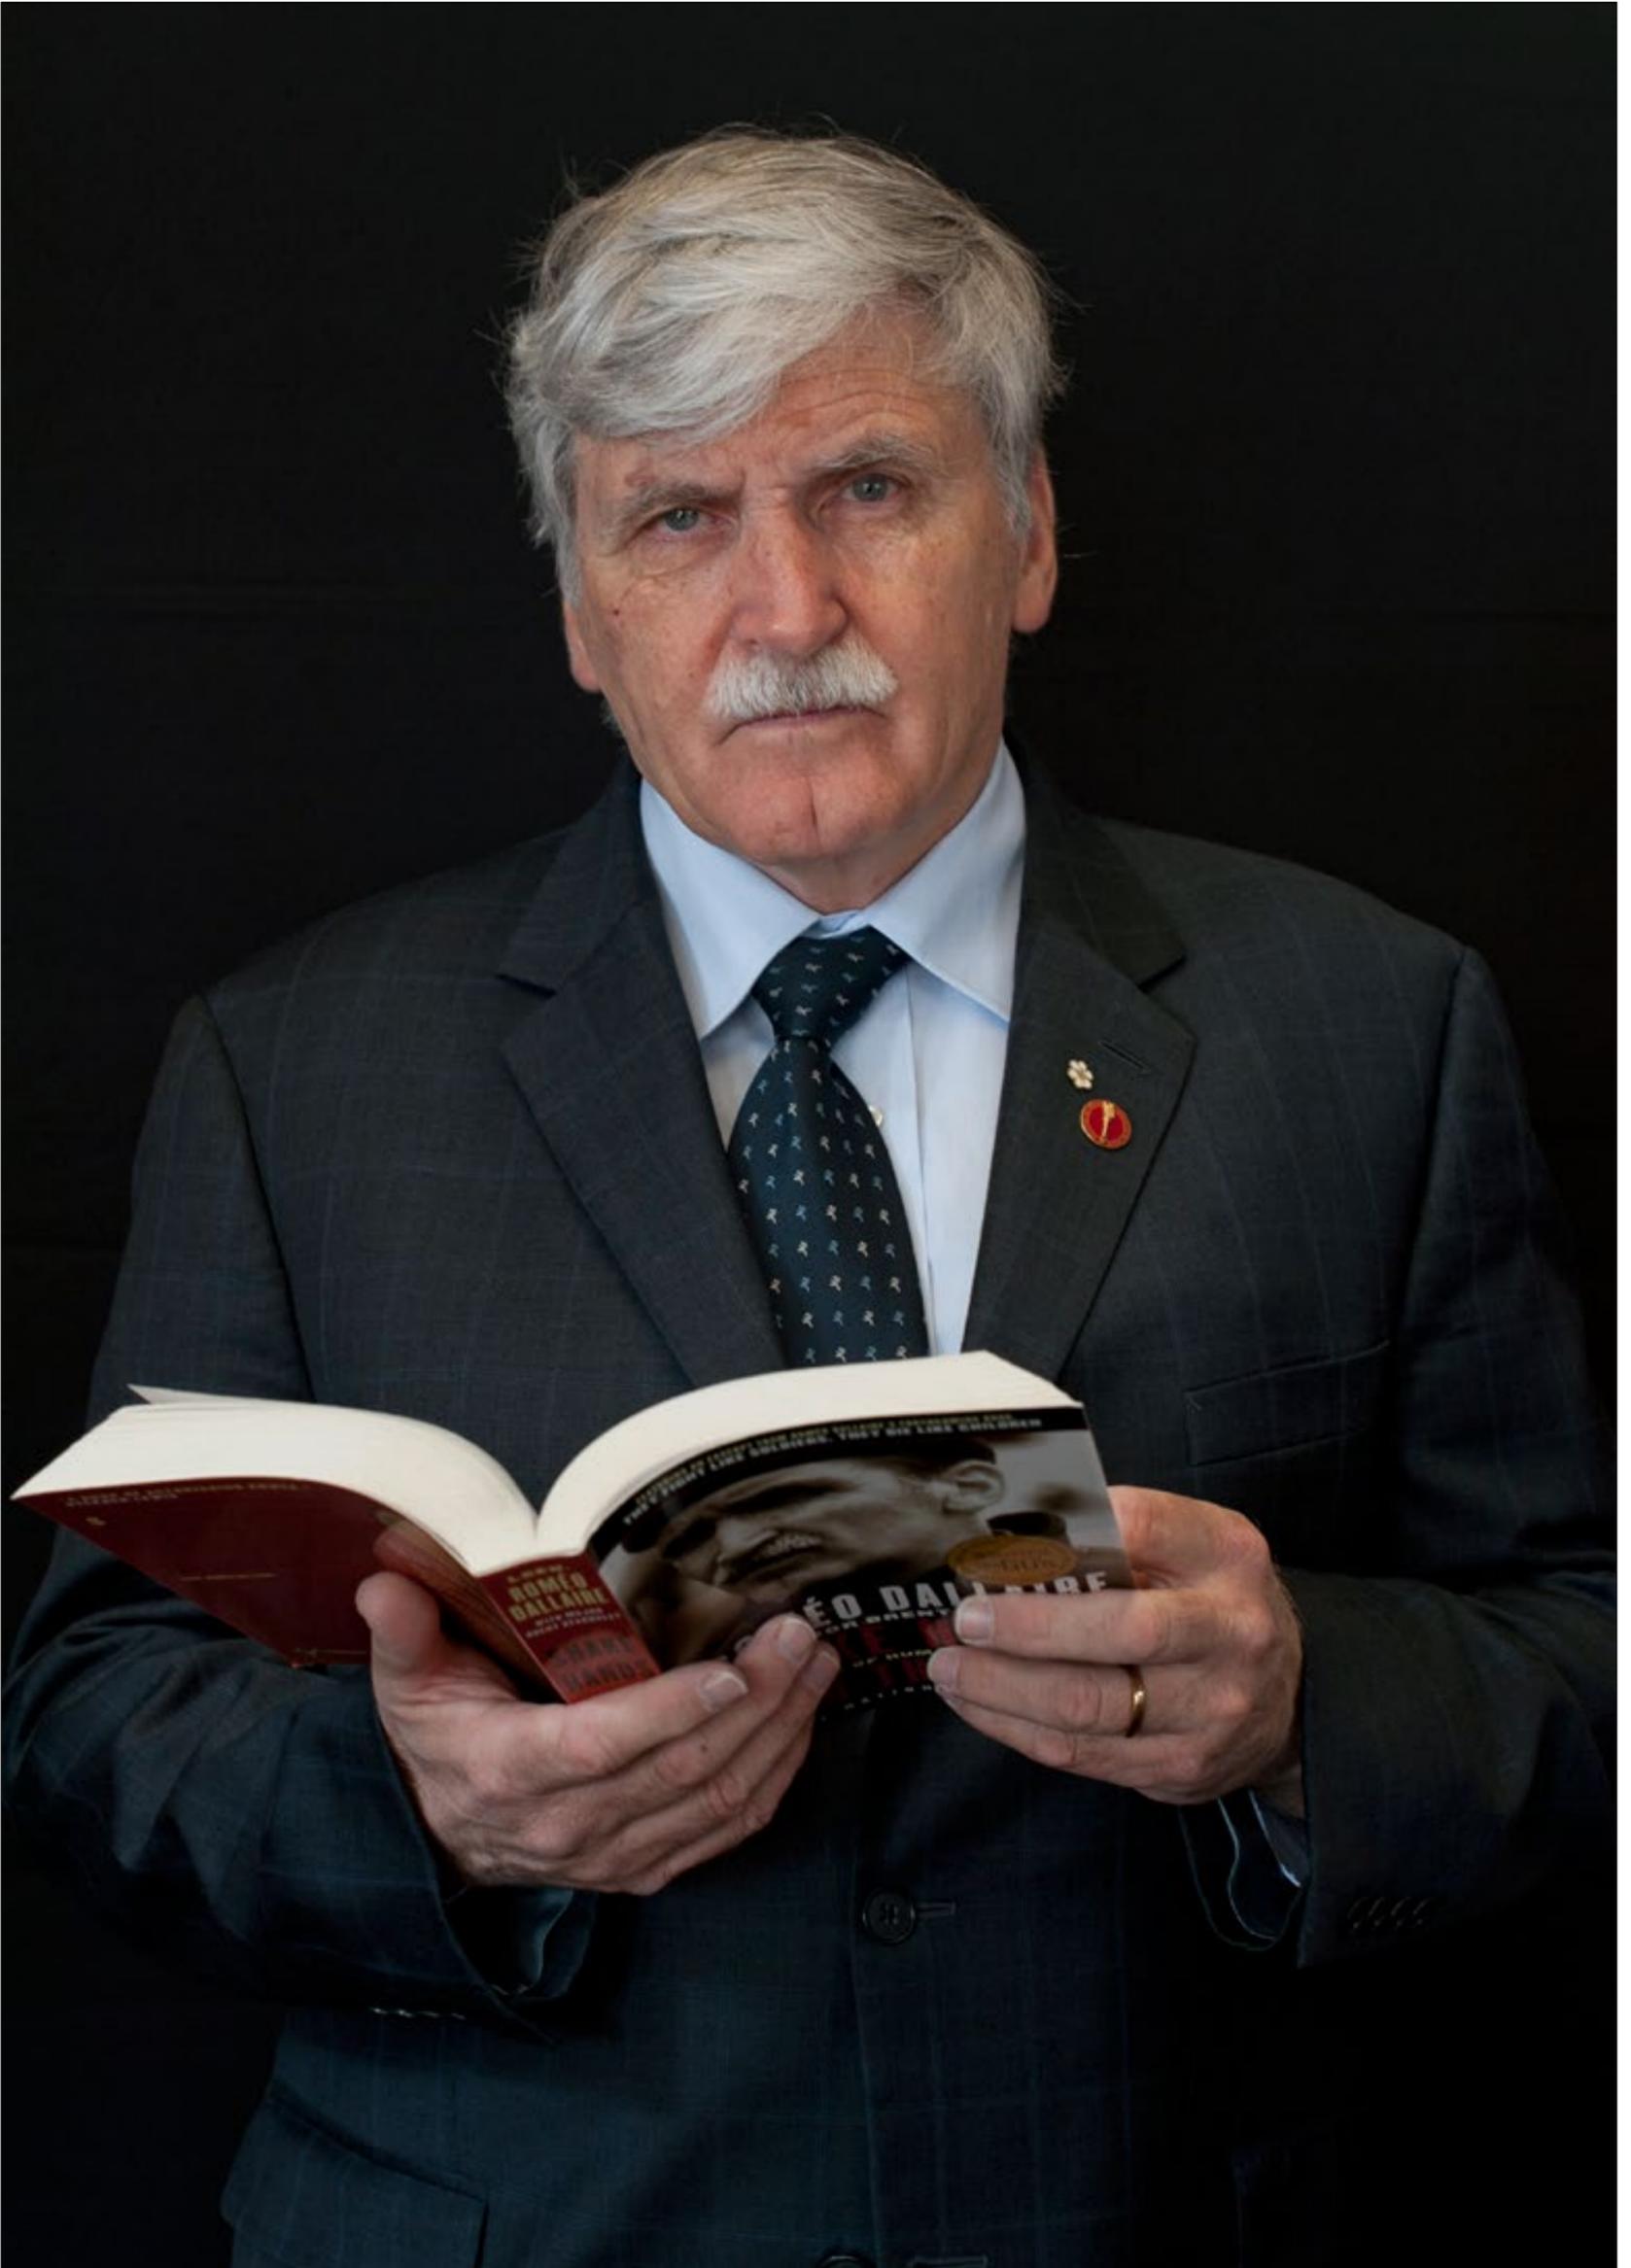

Photo by Kaitlin Abeele

Lt. Gen. Romeo Dallaire (retired) is the former leader of the 1994 UN mission in Rwanda during the 100-day genocide which killed over 800,000 people. Sen. Dallaire wrote a book, Shake Hands with the Devil: The Failure of Humanity in Rwanda, which chronicles his mission in Rwanda, and keeps the knowledge of the genocide alive. He said that he doesn't find any solace in writing about Rwanda, but does it out of moral obligation. "Writing about it just transports me back to hell." Dallaire was appointed to the Canadian Senate in March 2005. He is an advocate for ending the use of child soldiers and has also written a book about called They Fight Like Soldiers They Die Like Children.

Photo by Solana Cain

Olympian and world champion hurdler Perdita Felicien poses with the medal she won at NCAA for setting the record for the fastest time a freshman has ever run the 100-metre hurdles. Felicien retired from competitions last October. She says she doesn't miss it. "I eat what I want and I drink what I want," she said. "I only just retired though, ask me in a few years."

Photo by Anica James

Harold Blair Heeney sits in his residence at the Quinte Gardens retirement home. Heeney was the director of the former Smithfield Experimental Farm, located west of Trenton, from 1960-1979. He has published 27 books and has received a number of awards for his involvement with the Canadian horticultural and agricultural societies.

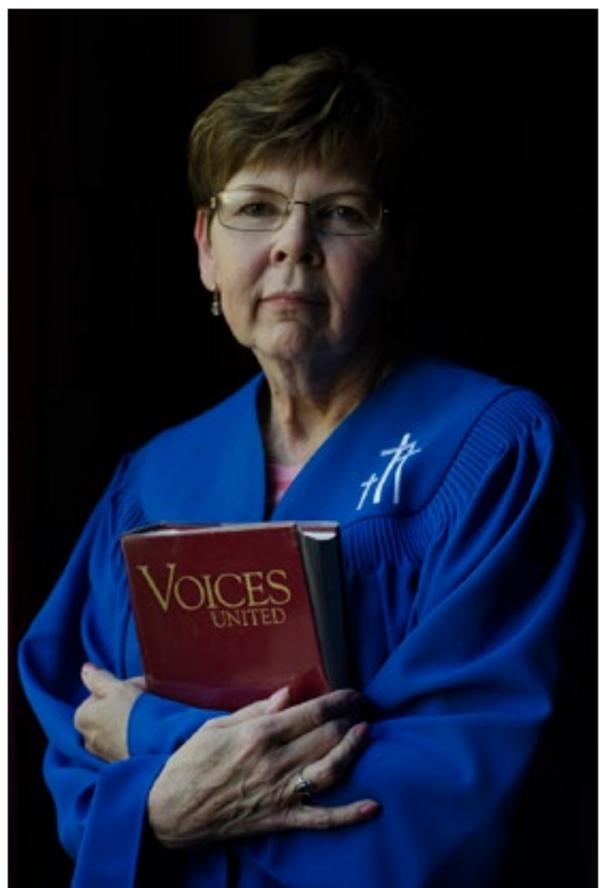

Photo by James Wood

Singing alto, Jean Herrington is a longtime member of Eastminster United Church. Music has been a part of Harrington's life since she was a child, taking piano lessons and being raised by her mother and father, both musical. After moving to Belleville, Herrington sat in the congregation for a year before finding the courage to join the choir. Since joining, Harrington has enjoyed the social aspect of being in a musical group.

(Above) Doug Comeau, artist and owner of Timberwolf Gallery, holds the coin which he designed the art for to be used in the Canadian Royal Mint series. The agency approached him in 2012. "They were looking for realists in graphite or colour pencil or a fine medium that has really fine detail for the coin, in order to stamp and do what they want to do." Photo by Sarah Taylor

(Right) Rivers Corbett, co-founder and CEO of Relish Gourmet Burgers, poses for a photo at his company's Fredericton, N.B. restaurant in October. Photo by Andrew Meade

(Left) Sam Barton came to Canada three years ago to study choral conducting at the University of Toronto. Barton grew up in Manchester, England. He really enjoys living in Toronto. He hasn't decided if he's going to stay here as a citizen yet but has a fondness for the country that is Canada. Photo by Julia Karpiuk

(Right) Nancy Aiken, a founding member of Save our Science, a St. Andrews, N.B. advocacy group, poses at Indian Point in St. Andrews in February. Achen is fighting to bring awareness to budgetary cuts to federal oceanographic research at the St. Andrews Biological Centre, one of Canada's most respected oceanographic research centres. After the biological centre's library was renovated for $2.6 million, the federal government closed it, moving the entire collection to the Bedford Oceanographic Institute's library in Dartmouth, N.S. Photo by Duncan Cairns-Brenner

(Above) Christopher Verhoux and Connor Shields participate in a game of live action roleplay, also known as LARP. LARP consists of fantasy fans dressing in costumes and fighting in small teams using foam weapons. Shields' and Verhoux's weapons and costumes are medieval-inspired and are both handmade. Photo by Gabrielle Smith

(Left) Dawn Stafford of Belleville attempts to play a trumpet and a flugel horn at the same time. Stafford has been collecting instruments since 1972. While percussion instruments are her favourites, she loves the interesting sounds made by the brass instruments. Photo by Elaine Bombay

(Left) Maryann Barnett is a member of the Federation of Canadian Naturists. Naturism is a life philosophy with physical, psychological, environmental, social and moral benefits, according to its members. Photo by Sarah Robertson

(Above) Matt Thompson speaks about his struggles of being accepted and becoming a part of the tattoo community in Toronto. With competition in the business being fierce, it is difficult to get new clients easily. Photo by Moush Sara John

(Left) Mariano Gonzales is an "alias" to identify this former Mexican wrestler. His real name cannot be disclosed as at the moment he illegally resides in Canada. This shot is part of a personal documentary project about clandestine immigrants. Photo by Giovanni Capriotti

Asked why she was late to the ball again, the poet Natalie McMullen, whose age was suspected to be somewhere between seven and 109, responded by quoting philosopher Nietzsche: "All truth is crooked, time itself is a circle." Photo by Giovanni Capriotti

(Above) Steven Tedford sells knives at the community centre in March. He has been living in the area for a year now. Tedford has been making knives for 20 years and has been doing it full-time for 10 years. Photo by David Fransky

(Right) Doris Roberts, 93, sits in her home in Trenton. Roberts receives services from the Victorian Order of Nurses such as cleaning and Meals on Wheels services that allow her to live independently. "I'm terrified of moving to a nursing home." Photo by Emily Cumming

Photo by Bryan Eneas

Connor Stone does a hardflip at the band shelter in Zwick's Park. Stone is a Grade 12 student at Moira Secondary School in Belleville.

Photo by Mandy Larade

Lewis Jeon attempts to feed teammate Hudson Gaglardi with a baby bottle during a relay at Coastland's teen camp located on Mud Lake, B.C. Jeon was born without a hand, however, he is able to do most things without it. Jeon also has a prosthetic arm, which he uses on occasions such as playing the violin.

Photo by Sarah Taylor

A man brings his camels to Jumeriah Beach in Dubai on a Sunday afternoon. Beachgoers can ride the camels on the beach and take photos with them.

(Right) Angelina Wrona is an artist who lives in the village of Merrickville, Ont. She says she likes to juxtapose dark subject matter with pretty innocence. Photo by Sarah Vissers

Photo by Anica James

A tourist's silhouette flecks the rocky, coastal landscape next to the Peggy's Point Lighthouse in the idyllic village of Peggy's Cove, N.S. Built in 1914, the lighthouse is celebrating its 100th year and continues to be a popular tourist attraction in the province.

Morgan Baskin, 18, hangs out on Queen Street West in March. Baskin is the youngest registered candidate in the 2014 Toronto mayoral election. Photo by Hannah Yoon

Loyalist Lancer Alisha Peeters poses in the the Lancers gym where she practises everyday with her basketball team. "When there's something you've got to prove, there's nothing better than a challenge," is the motto that Peeters lives by. Chosen by coach Chris Eligh to play varsity this year, Alisha is completing her first year of fitness and health promotion at Loyalist. Photo by Hannah Eden

Film enthusiast Taz Madden sits with his extensive video cassette collection in his west Toronto apartment. Madden's collection includes everything from Don Cherry's Rock'Em Sock'Em Hockey 9 to Dr. Seuss's The Lorax and have been gathered primarily from thrift stores and the garbage. Photo by Dillan Cools

Photo by Carla Antonio

Steve Davis is a collector of many things, including records, Niagara Falls memorabilia and tobacco. His most cherished is his extensive collection of taxidermy. Davis is the proud owner of approximately 40 taxidermy pieces that he has gathered over the last five years.

Photo by Giovanni Capriotti

Japanese-born Hideki Saito is an avid vinyl collector. He collects rock 'n' roll from 1950 to 1965. Instead of keeping the records on a shelf, he hangs them on the wall using an anti-dust spray.

Photo by Andrzej Terrence

Antonina Durham performs a traditional Russian storytelling for the spring festival, Maslenitsa, in Belleville's Market Square. Also known as crepe week or butter week, Maslenitsa is to celebrate the imminent end of winter.

(Above) – Dubbed the 'one woman orchestra,' Zoe Keating performs with her laptop and cello simultaneously. Using recording and layering techniques, she can create music that sounds like up to 16 cellos playing at once. Photo by Candice-Rose Gagnon

(Left) Nathan Phillips Square held their 11th annual Zombie Walk. People of all ages attended, and had a ball. They are hoping for just as good of turn out next year, if not better. Photo by Sarra Lalonde

Photo by Amanda Cheung

Jon Perry cuts a design into a piece of wood as he begins making a 'man cave' sign for a client. He has made over 40 of these signs. Woodworking is a hobby turned into a part-time business. Perry works out of his garage and is a corrections officer during the day.

Photo by James Paddle-Grant

Full-time worker Kevin Alkenbrack serves a new guest at the Morningstar Mission in Napanee. The guest is a homeless being who often slept in the Napanee cemetery. This was the man's first time attending the Morningstar Mission as he likes to be a very independent man. Alkenbrack had been asking the guest for weeks to come to the mission as he was in great need of food and shelter.

(Right) Dave Bailey and his five-year-old dog Shilo take a tumble down West Riverside Park's tobogganing hill. Shilo is a husky and shepherd mix. "This is Shilo's spot. We've been coming her for awhile now," Bailey said. Photo by Nathan Zbeetnoff

(Above) Garrison Moore hits the slopes with some friends at the North Park Street hill next to the 401 during his snow day this winter. Photo By Dillan Cools

(Below) After a few days of horrible winter weather conditions, the sun finally shined on the city of Belleville. Dana Loder enjoys a PD day tobogganing with his brother and father at West Riverside Park. Photo by Carla Antonio

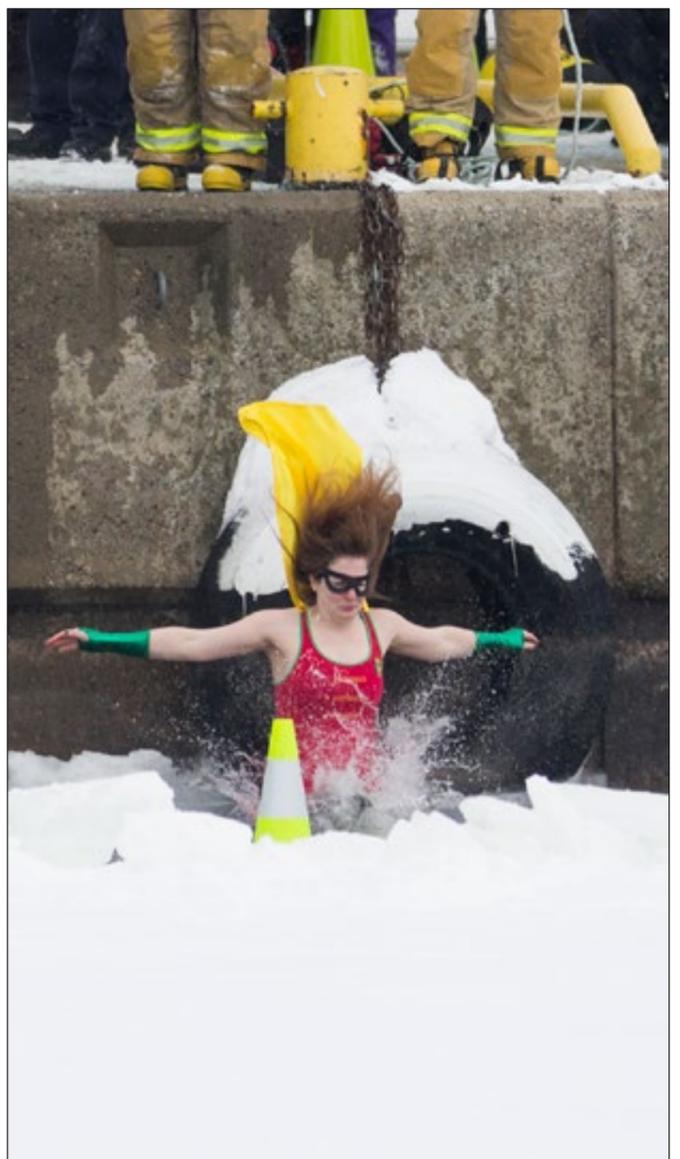

Photo by Amanda Cheung

Robin Sweet, dressed as Robin, takes a polar plunge into Kingston harbour. Over 100 individuals participated in the Ontario Law Enforcement Torch Run Polar Bear Plunge, in an effort to raise money and awareness for Special Olympics Ontario. The event raised over $25,000.

(Left) Kyle Youngs makes his way across the frozen Picton Bay during a winter snow squall. Youngs was one of the ice fishermen looking to participate in Merland Park's 5th annual Ice Fishing Derby which was cancelled due to the weather. Photo by Amanda Cheung

(Above) One of many ice sculptures is left untouched after hundreds of people were out enjoying the sunshine on the frozen shores of Lake Michigan this winter in Grand Haven, MI. Photo by Tristan Urry

(Right) One person died in March after a Durham Transit bus and a black pickup truck collided close to Kirby Crescent and Nichol Avenue. All passengers on the bus were fine but the truck driver was sent to hospital in critical condition. Photo by Justin Greaves

(Above, left) Kevin Ash competes in the first round of the ice sculpting competition at Winterlude held in Ottawa. The theme was favourite childhood cartoon. Ash works away at sculpting Mr. Incredible. Photo by Amanda Paulhus

(Above, right) Melanie Bolduc and her son, Malik Bolduc-Robert, 4, go out skating in March. Bolduc and her family do different activities throughout the week together. This was the first time they came to the RCAF Flyers arena at CFB Trenton for public skating. Photo by Nathan Zbeetnoff

(Left) Joe Pickstock sits in his fishing hut as he prepares for a morning of ice fishing on Hay Bay near Greater Napanee in January. Pickstock is the owner of PB&J Charters where he provides guided walleye or salmon trips on the Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario. Photo by Hannah Yoon

(Above) Firefighters from Midland Fire Department fight a house fire from above the top floor around 10 p.m. at a residence at the corner of Sixth and Victoria streets. Photo by Franki Ikeman

(Left) Princess Anne inspects her regiment, the Grey and Simcoe Foresters in a guard of honour ceremony at the Southshore Centre in Barrie, Ont. The inspection was followed by a dedication ceremony for the proposed military park at the site. This was Barrie's first royal visit since 1901 when the Duke and Duchess of York visited the city. Photo by Franki Ikeman

(Above) Frank Meyers, 85, sits in his truck watching and listening to the small but supportive group of protesters who had gathered in front of his Quinte West home. Photo by Anica James

(Right) Hundreds turned out to attend the rally at Yonge Dundas Square in downtown Toronto in support of raising the provincial minimum wage. Supporters marched from the square into the Toronto Eaton Centre, carrying red balloons. Their ultimate goal is to see the wage increased from its current amount of $11 to $14. Photo by M. Weisz

Photo by Alistair Maitland

Firefighters put out a car fire on Moira Street West, west of the bridge on Wallbridge-Loyalist Road. The driver, Annemieke Terpstra, was shaken but did not appear injured. The incident took place in late afternoon in Belleville. Firefighters were on the scene.

Photo by Jeremy McKay

Police in riot gear kettle demonstrators between Saint-Denis and Saint-Valier streets at the the 18th annual anti-police brutality protest in Montreal. Over 288 demonstrators were fined and five demonstrators were arrested.

Photo by Gabrielle Smith

Dug Stevenson, Mayor Neil Ellis and Gary Magwood cut a traditional roll of film to mark the opening of the third annual Belleville DocFest. The official opening presentation at the Empire Theatre was followed by a screening of 20 Feet from Stardom.

(Right) Georgette Fry gives an outstanding performance, backed up by Shout Sister, that left the crowds on their feet at the opening gala of Belleville's DocFest. Fry started the Shout Sister 12 years ago and now there are hundreds of women in the choirs in several cities. Photo by Adrienne Powell

Photo by Sarah Vissers

Maija Thompson, Eric Lucas and Alexanda Bell do their makeup before the preview performance of Leading Ladies at the Pinnacle Theatre in downtown Belleville.

(Right) Local artist Graham Robertson inspects his sculpture. Natural light from the window enables the artist to spot imperfections that are not visible under fluorescent light. Photo by Gabrielle Smith

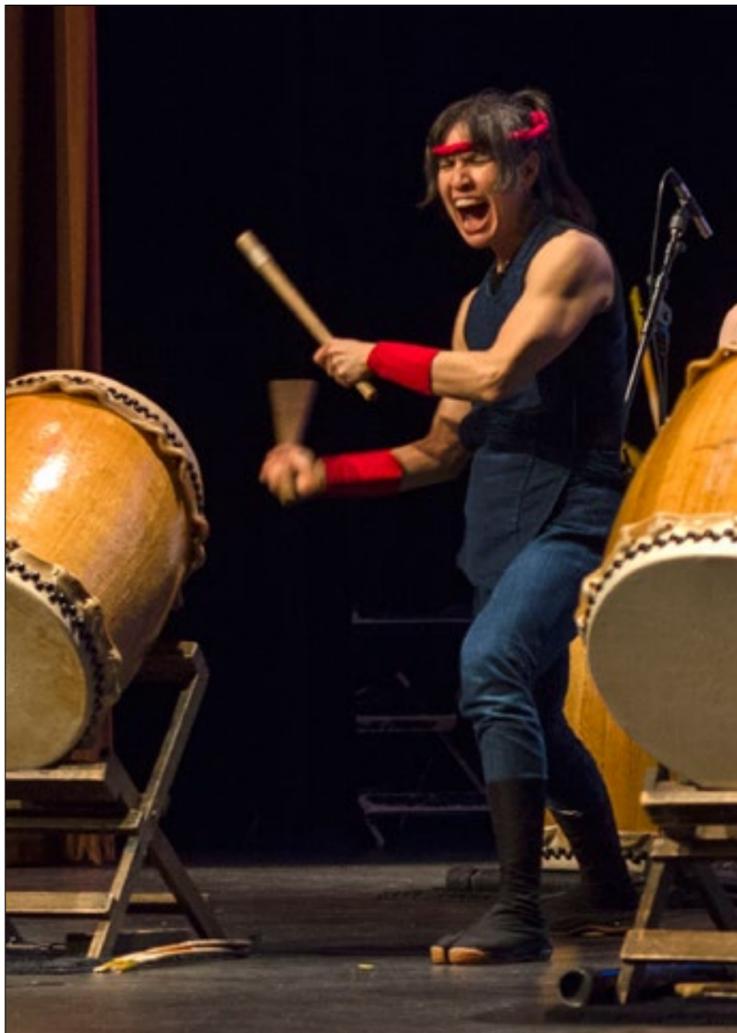

Photo by Sarah Vissers

Naomi Guilbert, a member of Fubuki Daiko, a Japanese drumming group from Winnipeg, Man., performs for school children in January at Maranatha Church in Belleville.

Photo by Hannah Yoon

Bonnie De Bruijin attempts her last problem during the finals of the Tour De Bloc at Grand River Rocks in Kitchener, Ont. in February. Approximately 200 competitors came out with 16 finalists at the end.

Photo by Justin Chin

People play table tennis at a public sport centre in Hong Kong, China. Government funding for public facilities for sports has been low for many years despite the high demand and low supply of facilities.

Photo by M. Weisz

The Toronto Roller Derby hosted a double header event as four of their house teams squared off at the bunker at Downsview Park in North Toronto. Wheely Nasty, Nov. 705, of the Gore Gore Rollergirls, stretches while getting ready for a showdown with the Death Track Dolls.

Photo by Elaine Bombay

Dylan Bolduc of Quebec tries to make a save during a game of human futsal at the Quebec Winter Carnival in Quebec City in February.

Photo by Sarah Taylor

Frank Horn, from Elphin, Ont., has attended SnoFest several times to race his dogs. He brought 13 of his 28 dogs.

(Left) Mike Van Dolder handles the final corner of the qualifying round at the Hastings Cup in February. Van Dolder's sled would balance on the right ski every corner he took due to the high speeds his sled operates at. Photo by Bryan Eneas

(Left) Belleville Bulls' Niki Petti sneaks a goal past Sudbury's Troy Timpano at the Yardmen Arena. Although they put up a good fight in the third period, the Bulls lost 4 - 2 to the Sudbury Wolves.
Photo by Carla Antonio

Photo Sarra Lalonde

(Above) Belleville Bulls took on the Erie Otters in a recent game. Otters goalie Devin Williams stops for a quick water break in between action. Otters won 4-1.

Photo by Andrew Meade

Kingston Frontenacs netminder Lucas Peressini turns aside a shot by Mississauga Steelheads Austin Gerhart during game action at K-Rock Centre in Kingston. The Frontenacs took the game with a score of 5-3.

Photo by Jeremy Mckay

Belleville Bulls Andrew Ming rebounds a goal against Ottawa 67's goaltender Phillippe Trudeau in February action. The Bulls went on to lose the game 3-2 in a shootout.

Photo by Mandy Larade

Jordan Subban of the Belleville Bulls encounters and trips over Sam Bennett of the Kingston Frontenacs unexpectedly in a chase for the puck during the Bulls' home game in Belleville at the Yardmen Arena.

Photo by Sarra Lalonde

Family Day 2014 included a charity hockey game with local law enforcement and the alumni hockey team featuring retired NHL players. The alumni team was coached by Walter Gretzky, Wayne Gretzky's father. Featured here is the goalie for the law enforcement team and a Timbits player. Before the game, Timbits players had the opportunity to skate and practise with both teams.

Photo by James Paddle-Grant

Ottawa 67's forward Brendan Bell drops the gloves with Kingston Frontenacs forward Loren Ulett in an attempt to get his team going after dropping two quick goals.

(Right) Lancers Kyle Cathcart (left) and Cody Travers (right) tackle George Manoukas during a rugby game. The Loyalist Lancers went on to win the game against Seneca College. Photo by Micah Bond

Photo by Paulina Uy

Loyalist College women's rugby team competed against the St. Lawrence Vikings on a very rainy Saturday afternoon at the Loyalist College upper field.

Photo by Carla Antonio

Volleyball setter Justin Greeves spikes the ball for a point for the Loyalist Lancers.

Photo by Amanda Cheung

Kam Fung Tai excitedly cheers with teammate Justin Greeves after Greeves delivered a hit gaining them a point in the third set of the game.

St. Lawrence head coach Barry Smith lashes out in frustration at referee and former mayoral candidate Mitch Panciuk after being rewarded a technical foul late in the game as his team fell 64-93 to the Loyalist Lancers on Saturday night. Photo by Dillan Cools

Photojournalism grads..then and now

Kaitlin Abeele

Dawn Barger

Anna Brown

Solana Cain

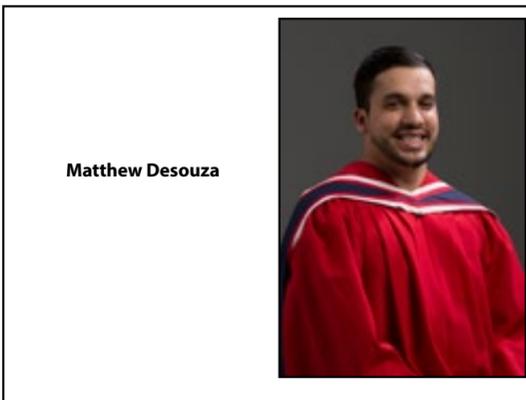

Jessica Campbell

Justin Chin

Emily Cumming

Matthew Desouza

Lacy Gillott

Melysa Gloude

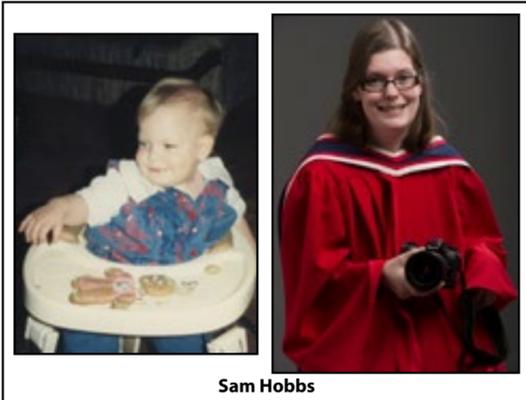

Justin Greaves

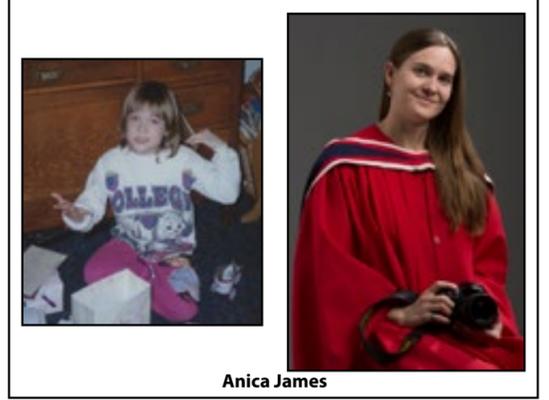

Taylor Hermiston

Michelle Heshka

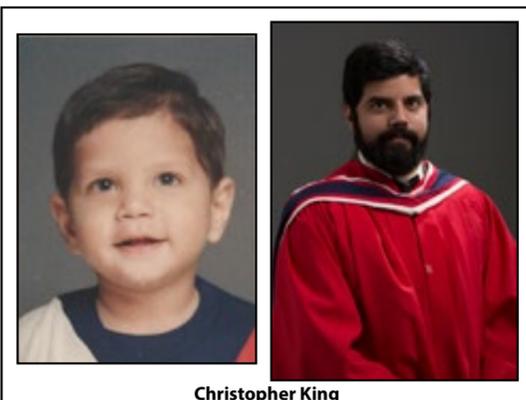

Sam Hobbs

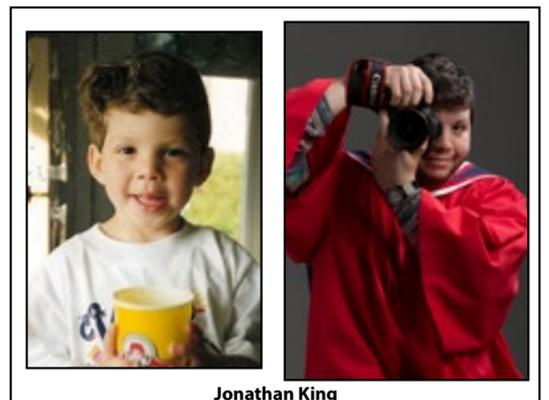

Anica James

Julia Karpuik

Christopher King

Jonathan King

Mandy Larade

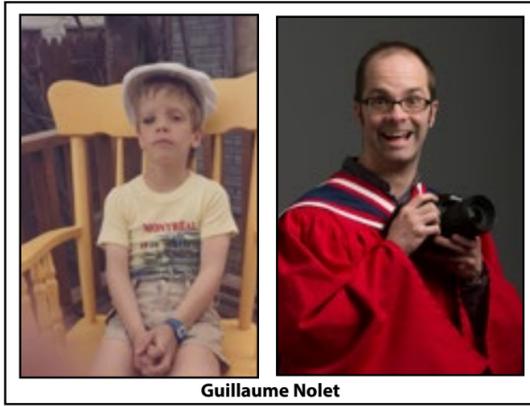

Dayna Lefebvre

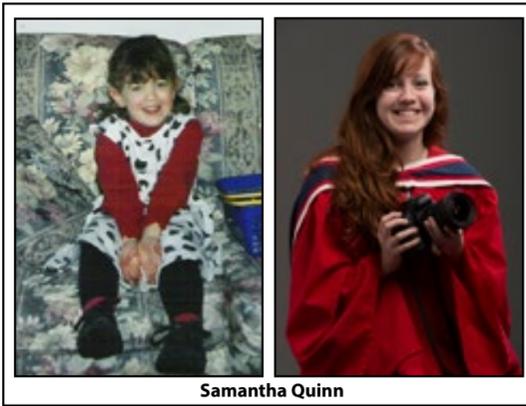

Natalie McMullen

Photojournalism grads..continued

Guillaume Nolet

Samantha Quinn

Zachary Shunock

Brianne Ste Marie Lacroix

Sarah Taylor

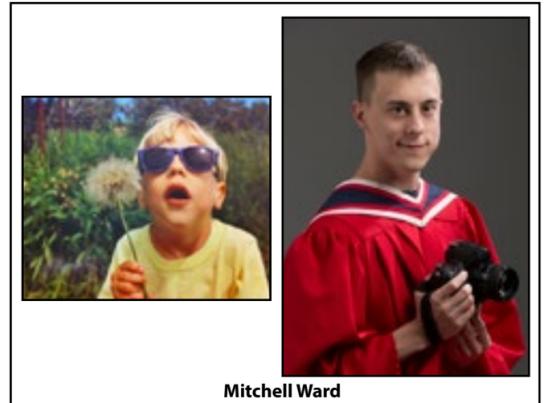

Victoria Thoms

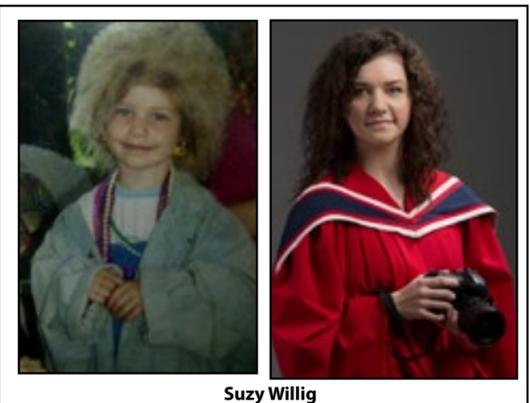

Paulina Uy

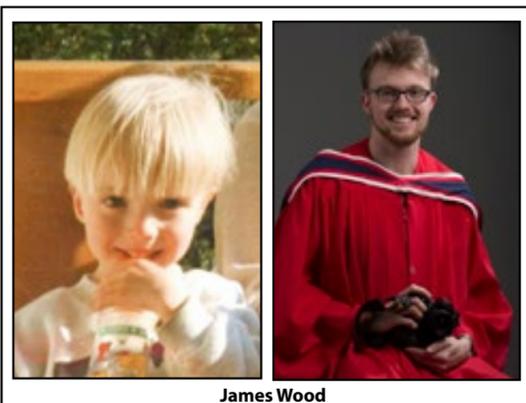

Sarah Vissers

Mitchell Ward

Suzy Willig

James Wood

Hannah Yoon

Missing from the group are Duncan Cairns-Brenner and Adam Dietrich

Photo by Alistair Maitland

The gang's all here

Back row (l-r): Christopher King, Suzy Willig, Vicki Thoms, Brianne Ste Marie Lacroix, James Wood, Kaitlin Abeele, Justin Greaves, Jon King.
 Centre row (l-r): Justin Chin, Taylor Hermiston, Michelle Heshka, Mandy Larade, Sarah Taylor, Hannah Yoon, Matt Desouza, Dayna Lefebvre, Guillaume Nolet, Anica James, Mitch Ward, Emily Cumming, Sarah Vissers, Julia Karpiuk, Paulina Uy, Solana Cain, Natalie McMullen and Emily Nelson.
 Front row (L-r): Scott Whalen, Patti Gower, Linda O'Connor, Frank O'Connor, Bill White, Samantha Hobbs, Dan Williams and Jazzy in the front. Not pictured are Dawn Bager, Anna Brown, Jessica Campbell, Samantha Quinn, Zachary Shunock, Duncan Cairns-Brenner and Adam Dietrich.