

The Pioneer

Vol. 47 · Issue #10
 Wednesday, Nov. 26, 2014
 Loyalist College · Belleville, ON · Canada

Photo by Fallan King Hillier

A night of dancing

The Shark Tank pub at Loyalist hosted a Bollywood event last night. The evening included an introduction to the Indian culture and traditional dance performances. Some of the performers included from left, Manpreet Kaur, Navdeep Kaur, Sandeep Kaur Uppal, Prabhjot Kaur Chahil and Sabdeep Jawanda Kaur.

Students help keep others cozy

By Emily LaFleur

Volunteer Denise Gilbert has a passion for helping people in need.

Gilbert, who is a child and youth worker, decided to start a winter coat drive in the small town of Brighton,

Ont., and hosted the fundraiser.

This event collects gently used winter coats from students and members of the surrounding community. The coat drive provides winter coats for free to anyone in need within the community. Organizers were pleased that many willing volunteers were students from East Northumberland Secondary School.

The students wanted to have an in-school project to promote helping others less fortunate than themselves. At total of about 13 students volunteered from ENSS. The event started just a short time ago and organizers have already received 50 winter coats.

This is significant for the small town of Brighton, which has a population of about 11,000. The coats are available to anyone in the community who is in need of a winter coat. Anyone can donate any gently used winter coats, hats, mitts and scarves. Any style or size will be accepted.

...See Coats, page 2

Fiddle music and step dancing delight audiences

By Andrzej Terrence

Many people around the world celebrate Christmas traditions. For the Scott Woods Band, it is their tradition to fiddle, step dance and tour the many cities of Ontario and Quebec.

On Monday evening, they played at St. Matthew's United Church on Holloway Street.

"I appreciate what they are doing, especially with the music, singing and step dancing," said Richard Lefler, a singer who came to enjoy the show.

The Christmas Tradition is a way for people across Ontario to enjoy music while supporting their communities in the aid projects the hosting venues are working on.

Woods and his band use their musical talent to spur charities and fund local churches in helping the community.

"We come; we provide the show, the programs and the posters. They basically host us," said Woods. The funds made are then split at the door.

Woods is a multiple winner of the Canadian Open Fiddle contest, the Canadian Grand Masters Fiddling championships and a Canadian Fiddle Entertainer of the Year. Having playing fiddle from the age of four, he has earned the nickname of the 'Flippin' Fiddler' for his famous trick of somersaulting with his fiddle on stage.

"I enjoyed the show. It is great. There is always some comedy. I had the chance to be in Scott's last Christmas tour," said

Steve Piticco, who also performed on stage for a couple of songs.

Some oddities that occurred during the show include a dancing hippo, barrel riding fiddle playing, and the use of household items as the bow of the fiddle. One such item happened to be a toilet plunger.

Woods' band includes Amanda MacInnis, Nadine Boles, Gary Boles, Kendra Norris, Bruce Timmins and Ron Dymond.

MacInnis is 14-years-old from Dundalk, Ont. and does step dancing, fiddling and vocals.

Boles plays guitar and vocals while her husband Gary plays the upright bass with vocals.

Norris has an extensive musical education with a varying number of instruments. For the Christmas Tradition Tour, Norris played fiddle, accordion and vocals.

Timmins specializes in Celtic, jazz and contemporary styles of guitar.

Dymond is from Kerwood, Ont. where he learned how to play drums in his high school stage band.

The group plays as a friendly and lively band, with many smiles in the audience as well as among the entertainers themselves.

Their next show was scheduled for Kingston and they will continue to play in many other cities until Dec. 14.

The Scott Woods and the band's next tour is called "In The Key of Eh!" featuring traditional Canadian folk music.

Photo by Andrzej Terrence

Scott Woods performs at St. Matthew's United Church Monday to raise funds for the community. Woods is a Canadian fiddle champion nicknamed the 'Flippin' Fiddler'. He plays on stage with six other musicians and a step dancer.

Woman Abuse Prevention Month held in November

By Michele Weisz

Every year, the month of November marks Woman Abuse Prevention Month in Ontario.

Throughout the year, hundreds of organizations across the province provide workshops, counselling, education and a safe place to stay for the millions of women who are victims of abuse or assault.

During the month, these organizations try to promote awareness about the abuse that women face throughout the year. Violence against women can be physical, sexual, emotional, verbal or even financial.

According to the United Nations, violence against women is defined as: "Any act of gender-based violence that results in, or is likely to result in, physical, sexual or mental harm or suffering to women, including threats of such acts, coercion or arbitrary deprivation of liberty, whether occurring in public or in private life."

More often than not, the abuse suffered by women is at the hands of an intimate partner. For the past three decades, women who are murdered in Canada are three to four times more likely to be killed by their partner.

Every year, over 80 per cent of all police-reported domestic assaults are against women. This statistic is the same in every province in Canada. Unfortunately, 90 per cent of abuse is not reported at all. At any given time, over 3,000 women live with their children in a shelter in order to escape abuse and violence.

Janet Wilson, a manager at Family Service Toronto, says she believes that "women will always experience violence until men's attitude and behaviours towards women change."

...See Women, page 2

Students enjoy four-legged therapy

By Fallan King Hillier

Rosie the basset-hound was just one of the four-legged special guests at Loyalist College Monday as part of the dog therapy program.

Therapy dogs from St. John Ambulance in Belleville were at the Pioneer building at the college on Nov. 24, to help relieve some of the stress and pressure from students during this busy time of the academic year.

Suzie Farrow is the member from St. John Ambulance who has PTSD, or post-traumatic stress disorder. She has a basset-hound guide dog named Rosie, who is four years old and will be five years old in two weeks. Farrow has sons and Rosie is "her only girl" in her family.

Rosie always has a rose on her collar to remind people of her name. Rosie has a certificate for therapy dog community service certificate and has successfully completed the child-friendly evaluation. Rosie even has her own Facebook page.

Sandy Gordon is the member from St. John Ambulance and her dog's name is Bella. They usually go to the library for the "paws reading program" in Belleville and in Trenton. They will do it again after Christmas in January.

The paws reading program usually has five children at every Tuesdays. Gordon said it is difficult to get in the public school with Bella because some children are afraid of dogs and some of children are allergic. There is a program for children who are afraid of dogs called Bite Free.

Colleen Ringham, program development officer for continuing education said, "It's the first time for dogs here in Pioneer building."

Meghan Ormerod, a practical nursing student said, "It's my first time come the dog therapy and I think they are cute! I will come back here again."

Rebecca Hammond, also a practical nursing student said, "I miss my dogs at home. I got homesick and they help me feel better."

Sarah Ogden works in mental health

Photo by Fallan King Hillier

Loyalist College students (l-r) Rebecca Hammond, Ashley Parks, and Meghan Ormerod came for a little cuddle time during a dog therapy event in the Pioneer building on Monday. With exams and assignments due, it can be a stressful time for students.

and wellness at Loyalist.

"Students are very stressed at this time of year due to exams that are coming up and many assignments being due," said Ogden.

"I would recommend healthy eating, proper sleep, reducing caffeine like coffee and talking about the stress. Nobody is alone."

The therapy dogs are amazing, she said, because they can increase endorphins.

"Feeling those good chemicals in the brain helps us feel less stressed and also lowers blood pressure."

There is a picture of a dog from the dog therapy program on her office wall.

The therapy dogs will return to Loyalist on Dec. 12, Dec. 15 and Dec. 18 in the gym.

Coats...

Continued from Page 1

Coats can be dropped off at East Northumberland Secondary School's main office until Thursday. The free winter coats will be given away Nov. 27.

Organizers of the fundraiser say buying winter clothing can be a challenge for some people. In a small community, there can be a limited selection of inexpensive good quality coats that people can afford. Some may also find it difficult to travel to larger cities with more of a selection.

"I am very pleased with the positive feedback. So far, many people have already donated and the enthusiasm to help others is exciting," Gilbert said.

She has further inspired students who wanted to help others in some way. Some students are planning to help a community in Africa in January. They will work on various projects such as renovations to schools. Some students will donate clothing and school supplies, because not everyone can go to Africa. A group of students wanted to help their community locally. The winter coats are free to those who need them. Organizers will also continue to collect them after the event finishes.

Some leftover coats will be stored at the school for any student who may need one later this winter. The other coats will be donated to the local clothing depot.

Photo by Emily LaFleur

Volunteer Denise Gilbert checks the donated coats at East Northumberland Secondary School in Brighton last Friday. The child and youth worker started the winter coat drive to help keep people warm in the cold winter months ahead.

Women...

Continued from Page 1

Violence against women occurs in every culture, class, race, ethnicity, religion and community throughout the country.

Maire Sinha of the Canadian Centre for Justice, says, "Violence against women in Canada is a serious, pervasive problem that crosses every social boundary and ... remains a significant barrier to women's equality and has devastating impacts on the lives of women, children, families and Canadian society as a whole."

According to Wilson, "more education must be provided to the general public, about gender inequality, sexism and women's rights."

While there are many non-profit organizations working hard to help the women affected, "all levels of government and all sectors of society have to put this issue front and foremost, to ensure there are policies and procedures in place that create safer environments for women," says Wilson.

The Canadian Women's Foundation website states: "It is every woman's fundamental right to live in safety and security in her home and community - free from the threat of violence."

With that in mind, as November comes to a close, those working on this issue suggest that perhaps Canadians should consider every month to be Woman Abuse Prevention Month.

Bulls in slump after taking a thumping in weekend action

United Way partners with hockey team in fundraising effort at Sunday game

By Kayleen Preston

The Belleville Bulls were overwhelmed by the Barrie Colts Sunday at the Yardmen Arena, losing 9-3 in the last of three weekend games.

The Bulls played a total of three games within 48 hours, losing every game, which has now progressed into a five-game losing streak.

The team began this weekend at the General Motors Centre in Oshawa Friday night losing 6-4. Then returned home to play Owen Sound Saturday night losing 3-2, ending with their game Sunday afternoon against Barrie.

The exhaustion was clearly hitting the Bulls on Sunday. Although they fought hard, a majority of the play was in their end throughout the entire game.

Charlie Graham, the Bulls first string goalie, was in net a majority of Sunday night's game. You could see in Graham's face that his spirit was shot down as every shot went passed him and into the net.

Over the entire game, Graham only took a short break with 7:46 left in the second period after letting in five goals. Connor Hicks replaced him, unfortunately letting two extra goals in the few minutes he was in net.

Photo by Kayleen Preston

The Belleville Bulls were trampled by the Barrie Colts during Sunday's game at the Yardman Arena. During the third period, Bulls goalie Charlie Graham turned in an attempt to grab the puck from the net, as Colts player Michael Webster (24) crashed and tumbled over him. The Bulls lost 9-3, making it the fifth game they've lost in a row.

At the end of the game, Barrie had a total of 39 shots on the Belleville net, and the Bulls only got 28 shots on net. Although his exhaustion was evident, Graham still did a fantastic job keeping a majority of shots out of the net.

There were a total of 2,090 people in attendance on Sunday night's game, and 81 of these contributed to people using vouchers to get a discounted ticket on behalf of United Way. By presenting the voucher at the box office, fans got $5.50 off their ticket price, and $5 from every ticket sold with the voucher went to the United Way.

During the pre-game until the end of the second period, the United Way also held a silent auction, which included a Montreal Canadiens autographed P.K. Subban jersey that went for $850.

In total, the silent auction raised approximately $1,100 to $1,200. The money collected from the auction and vouchers helped United Way get closer to their goal of $2,090,000 that they hope to reach by the end of the year. Before the game, the campaign was just over halfway of achieving that goal.

This is United Way's second year of their partnership with the Bulls.

The Bulls next three games are also one after another and are all out of town. The first game is in Niagara on Thursday, Nov. 27 at 7 p.m., second is in Mississauga on Friday night at 7:30 p.m., and the week finishes off with their third game Saturday night in Erie at 7 p.m.